After all regular admission and international student requirements are met, if the student is admitted and has paid the first year's tuition, the student will be issued an I-20 and a Letter of Acceptance. At that time, he/she must go to the immigration office with the I-20 and admissions letter to receive permission to attend school in the United States of America. If an international student is unable to secure a visa after the tuition has been paid, Reicher Catholic High School will refund 95% of the tuition amount to the student. A 5% processing fee will be retained to cover costs incurred by the school in the admission process.

All international students will pay the non-Catholic rate, regardless of their religious affiliation. This is to cover the administrative cost of processing the application each year.
